About

Archive

Lupara Bianca revives the iconic 50s chic, smart casual mens-wear style for the modern gentleman, all while hanging onto the essence of what made the 50s so unique.

Picture this ; It's the spring of 1950 in New York, a town recovering from the tremors of World War II that raged in Europe. Trickle down, came the architecture, cars, music and fashion that all echoed the period in stunning detail. As the decade progressed, the fusion of the established European aesthetic and the newfound Americana identity introduced some of the era's most distinct styles and music which reflected the birth of a cool new era.

Studio Lupara Broadcast 1

8 December 2020

Introducing the sonic division of Lupara Bianca, Studio Lupara. We have curated the sounds of Lupara Bianca and compiled it into a playlist. Conceived as a soundtrack for our concept shop to compliment the narrative of wandering in the streets of The Big Apple and Sicily during the 50's and 60s, this broadcast features era appropriate gems from The Five Satins and Otis Redding as well as anachronistic hits from Steely Dan and Andrew Hale.

Behind The Cloth - Spring / Summer 2021

10 December 2020

Spring / Summer 2021 introduces a myriad of pieces that all directly or indirectly reflect the essence of the 1950s. Today, we will tell you about the history of the fedora and the suit jacket and how they both have impacted the fashion of today.

The fedora is most arguably made famous by members of the mob such as Al Capone and Mickey Cohen. Although its roots actually traced back earlier into the age of the Frontier. Favoured in all seasons, this icon has become a staple in menswear for its simplistic design and elegance.

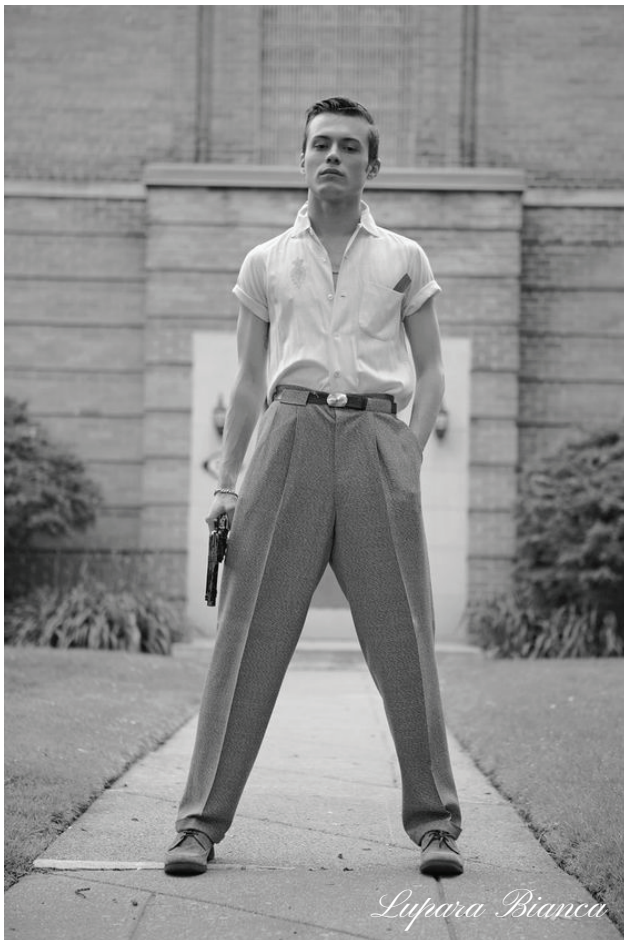

Pair it with a suit on a night out or even just a guayabera on a bright summer's day, and you will be attracting eyes.

Two interesting tidbits, many gangsters who adorned the fedora would typically attach a coin on the ribbon of the band, nobody is sure why but it sure does give a distinctive shine under the light. The colour of the hat itself also bears some meaning itself, the black hats would typically be associated with the “bad guy”, while the white hats would have associations with the “good guys”.

Any Colour You Like

15 December 2020

Blues, Rockabilly and the Rock N' Roll attitude. Probably three of the biggest 50s fashion influences and none of them came from fashion ironically. Fresh off the war, young individuals could care less about conformity and authority, rather they were there to make their voices be known and take no crap from anyone. The style is the emodiment of the attitude.

Today, we will talk about some of the most influential styles of the period and how it has gracefully made its way to the 21st century. Arguably, some of the most notable looks emerged from the rockabilly scene ; straight fitting trousers, bowling shirts and work jackets.

What once came from the employees at the alley has now transformed into a fashionable look and its not difficult to see why ; it was comfortable, it fit well and it just looked good. Plain and simple. Today, some of the world's leading labels produce these very items every season and they are among some of the consumer's favourites because the silhouette itself leaves a lot to the imagination, polka dot prints, made from satin or even plain, the possibilities are endless.
